

Throughout 2002, all City Hall computers and Departments were completely networked together. All City hall employees were given E-mail addresses in order to provide a means of internal and external electronic communication and file sharing. Networking the computers has also increased efficiency in researching on the Internet because high-speed cable access is available to all computers. As the network develops and new functions become available (such as GIS mapping, scheduling, and resource sharing), the infrastructure of a single networked computer system will become more evident.

Networking will continue in the year to come by adding access to the Police Department, Fire Department, Parking Authority, and Municipal Court employees in the Public Safety Building.
